

Welcoming you at Oundle

Once again I am delighted to invite young organists worldwide to join us for Oundle's annual summer school. It's a rather special house-party at which the famous and the aspiring rub shoulders during a week-long, round-the-clock schedule of work, relaxation, challenge and inspiration.

James Parsons
Director

This year I am particularly pleased that, thanks to the generosity of The Carnegie United Kingdom Trust and in keeping with the international outlook of the summer school, we are able to offer bursaries to assist students to attend and to enjoy further study abroad.

Our 1992 faculty also reflects today's increasingly widening cultural and social international scene. Flags of many countries will fly at Oundle in July. All our tutors are coming to the summer school for the first time: they will provide new insights and a fresh approach to music. A warm reception awaits them.

I enthusiastically encourage a prompt response to our invitation and look forward to welcoming students and observers to one of the loveliest areas of rural Britain as we celebrate the art of organ playing.

Since its installation in the Chapel in 1984, the Frobenius organ, which was the inspiration for the International Organ Festival, has also increased the musical reputation of Oundle School.

One of the largest of these Danish-made instruments now in Britain, the organ is built on classical lines with mechanical action. It has three manuals and 35 stops.
