The Performers

The BBC Big Band has a history going back to the 1930s as Henry Hall's BBC Dance Orchestra, but it was in the early 1960s that it really came into being. Newly located in Birmingham, the BBC Big Band has become one of the nation's musical treasures, extolled for its precision playing, balanced ensemble and mastery of style. Most of the leading band leaders in this country and America (including Nelson Riddle and Bob Farnon) have appeared with the Band, which performs regularly on BBC Radio 2.

Rosemary Squires is Britain's best known big band singer; she has appeared with all the great names in the big band world. Rosemary has more broadcasts to her credit than any other female singer, including three television series of her own and frequent television and radio appearances in Europe and on the Johnny Carson Show in New York.
