school for young organists

Summer School Tutors

In addition to those tutors who are giving recitals during the Festival, and whose biographies thus appear elsewhere in this programme, several other esteemed organists join our summer school to give an intensive week of teaching to the students, but for whom the packed schedule of events during the festival does not give time for a recital.

James L Thomas

Assistant course director to the OIF Summer School, James has held prestigious teaching and organist posts at St Mary's Bourne St, London and Christ College Brecon, amongst others. In September he is to become director of music at St Leonards-Mayfield School, with its famous May Festival.

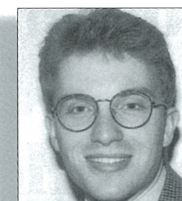

Bine Katrine Bryndorf

A former prizewinning student of Daniel Roth and Michael Radulescu, Bine Katrine Bryndorf is assistant professor of organ at the Royal Danish Academy, Copenhagen, and currently artist-in-residence at Danish Radio.

Robert Costin

Following a music scholarship to Oundle School, Robert Costin subsequently studied at the Royal Academy of Music, and was organ scholar of Pembroke College, Cambridge. Following assistant organist positions at Wellington and Auckland Cathedrals, New Zealand, he is now assistant director of music at Worksop College.

The Advanced Academy course has been enhanced in recent years, and is designed specially for those who wish to take up a professional career as an organist. The students on Advanced Academy now spend three days of the summer school week resident in Cambridge, by kind permission of The Leys School. Thus they have access to the finest College organs. Distinguished organists will each spend a day with the Advanced students in Cambridge, focusing on a particular area of study.

Stephen Cleobury

World famous director of the choir of King's College, Cambridge, Stephen Cleobury is superbly qualified to coach the students in interpreting romantic British organ music, at King's.

Kevin Bowyer

Winner of all the most prestigious organ competitions, Kevin Bowyer is a towering figure amongst today's top world-class organists. Professor of organ at the RNCM, he is a frequent tutor at Oundle where his great gifts are of instant appeal to students.
