Why you should read

Organists' Review

Organists' Review is all about the pipe organ – the undisputed king of instruments – and its music. It is published quarterly by The Incorporated Association of Organists, the UK's largest charitable and educational association for organists, choir trainers, enthusiasts for the instrument, its repertoire, and the church music scene in general.

Every 100-page, A4-size issue includes many stunning colour photographs and is full of topical information, with detailed articles about organs, composers, performers, and playing. A very comprehensive review section covers new organ & choral recordings, music, and books. Our lively education section is designed to appeal to players of all standards. We have a regular clientele of around 10,000 readers and over 120 advertisers, including organ builders from many countries, festival & concert organisers, cathedral & parish church organists, educational organisations, recording companies, freelance artists, publishers, consultants, and many others.

Youngsters will live at Fletton House, Oundle, a comfortable and well-equipped boarding house close to Oundle School Chapel. Facilities include games room. Pastoral care is given by experienced staff.

T I M E T A B L E

The course begins at 10.30am on the Friday. During the weekend the students will enjoy seven inspiring teaching sessions, playing the fine organs in and around Oundle. A special feature will be the trip to Cambridge to hear Jonathan Scott's recital on the thrilling 4 manual organ in St John's College Chapel, Cambridge preceded by an 'organ crawl' to try out several of the organs in other college chapels.

The course will end with an informal concert given by the students themselves; they will play the splendid 3 manual Frobenius organ in Oundle School Chapel. This event takes place on Sunday 14 April at 2.30pm; parents and friends are warmly invited (free admission). Tea and cakes at about 3.45pm will conclude the proceedings.
